Simplicity offers a respectful, personalised service

Simplicity Funerals Melton is a local business that caters to everyone in the community, providing a simple, practical and affordable yet respectful alternative to the services offered by other funeral providers.

With the first funeral home branch opening in 1979, Simplicity Funerals has been supporting and assisting Australians and their families for over 35 years.

Simplicity Funerals Melton has the vision of giving families real choices in funerals through simple services made easy and at affordable prices.

The Melton funeral home is equipped with a spacious onsite chapel which can seat 100 guests, and has additional standing room for another 100 guests. It also has a refreshments area which can be used to serve snacks to friends and family after funeral services.

Operating since 2019, Simplicity Funerals Melton takes pride in its personalised, respectful service. Location manager Michelle Blacklock understands that loss is a heavily personal time, and ensures that the Simplicity team do all they can to ease families' burdens.

"Our personal ethos is that we treat every family that comes in as if they're our own," Michelle says. "Our team have all experienced bereavement in some form, and we think that's important to have that empathy, to know what it's like to be in that position."

Working in the industry for over a decade, Michelle loves being able to work with people and relieve some of their burdens during a very stressful time. Dealing with the loss of a loved one can be overwhelming, so Michelle and her team are highly experienced in assisting families navigate such a stressful and upsetting process.

There are a variety of services on offer at Simplicity Funerals Melton. Ranging from fixed-price packages to tailor-made funeral and burial services, whatever the need is, Simplicity can accommodate it. They also offer pre-paid funerals for those who'd like to give their family peace of mind.

"We like to inject individuality into our services. We help people put together a celebration of life that reflects their loved one's life," Michelle explains.

During lockdown, funeral services are limited in the number of attendees that are permitted to attend, meaning that many family and friends will miss out.

"We had one large family with lots of grandkids lose their grandpa during the last lockdown. We arranged for the grandkids to bring in their grandpa's photos and knick-knacks so we could recreate his 'man-cave,'" Michelle says.

"When the service was live-streamed the family could see grandpa's things, and it meant the grandkids who couldn't attend were still able to be involved and feel connected."

The team at Simplicity Funerals Melton are creative and steer clear of cookie-cutter approaches to celebrating life. With a strong connection to the community, Michelle and Simplicity Funerals is proud to serve Melton and the surrounding areas.

"I love the connection to the community we have in Melton," says Michelle. "Melton might be considered part of Melbourne, but it really has a country feel at heart – the people are so friendly. We love to give back when we can. When we renovated our chapel we donated our lovely old pews to a local church."
