Opportunity to join a Star team

Are you a people person? A recent high school or university graduate? Looking for a career change? Star News Group is looking for sales executives to join the team and work closely with clients across the western and northern suburbs.

To be successful in this role, applicants must be able to work autonomously and independently but also thrive in a team environment.

In a position with a strong community focus, Star Weekly sales executives will engage on online, over the phone and face-to-face with clients and team members.

With a base salary and ability to work towards commission, successful applicants will need to be able to achieve multiple KPIs, in both print and digital areas.

Experience in the industry or field isn't a prerequisite, but the ability to adapt to changing circumstances, work to deadlines and maintain discipline will be valued highly. Applicants must also have their driver's licence and reliable vehicle as well as effective written and oral communication skills.

With the potential to face rejection from clients, applicants will need to be resilient and have the ability to bounce back. Cold-calling and visiting clients and businesses will all be a part of the job.

"No day is ever the same here – there's always something going on and you'll never have a dull moment at Star Weekly," account manager Gayle Williams said. "The people you'll meet and the connections you make will hold you in great stead for the future."

On the job training will be provided to successful applicants, with a strong team culture and great office location in Keilor Park waiting for the right fit.

For more information on the role or to apply, email Star Weekly's group advertising sales manager, Mandy Clark, at mandy.clark@starnewsgroup.com.au.

The team at Star Weekly Keilor Park is looking for new staff members to come onboard.
